EMX Quad European Championship at Chernivtsi (Ukraine)

The beautiful track of Chernivtsi in Ukraine hosted the third round of the 2018 EMX Quad European Championship. Around 8.000 spectators packed around the track to welcome and enjoy their favorite riders, as to feel the spirit of the race. The weather, despite all forecast, turned out to be perfect during the whole weekend. Even though, the organizer did a massive job to maintain the good quality of the track.

Polish rider Roman Gwiazda took a full advantage in the Qualifying Race and was leader the whole time. The fight was on for other two spots. Harry Walker from Great Britain managed to finish second and Kevin Saar from Estonia secured the third place.

Press Release

Sunday began with a chill, but turned out to be a perfect day for racing.

Estonian rider Kevin Saar did his best and went ahead to win the first race. Second and third places went to Christopher Tveraen from Norway and Harry Walker from Great Britain.

In the second race and overall standings, the three leaders kept their positions.
